HTML and CSS

The airline must for their marketing department have done a website according to your best ability to sell its holidays.

The website must have a cover page and subpages to their 2 travel destinations Antarctic and the Sahara. Besides the page external link to the Travel Guarantee Fund.

It is expected that you use images to showcase destinations, and tables to set price Examples of travel postseason.

The website should be graphically presented in divisions and preferably meet the following players:

WEBSITENAME

MENU

CONTENT
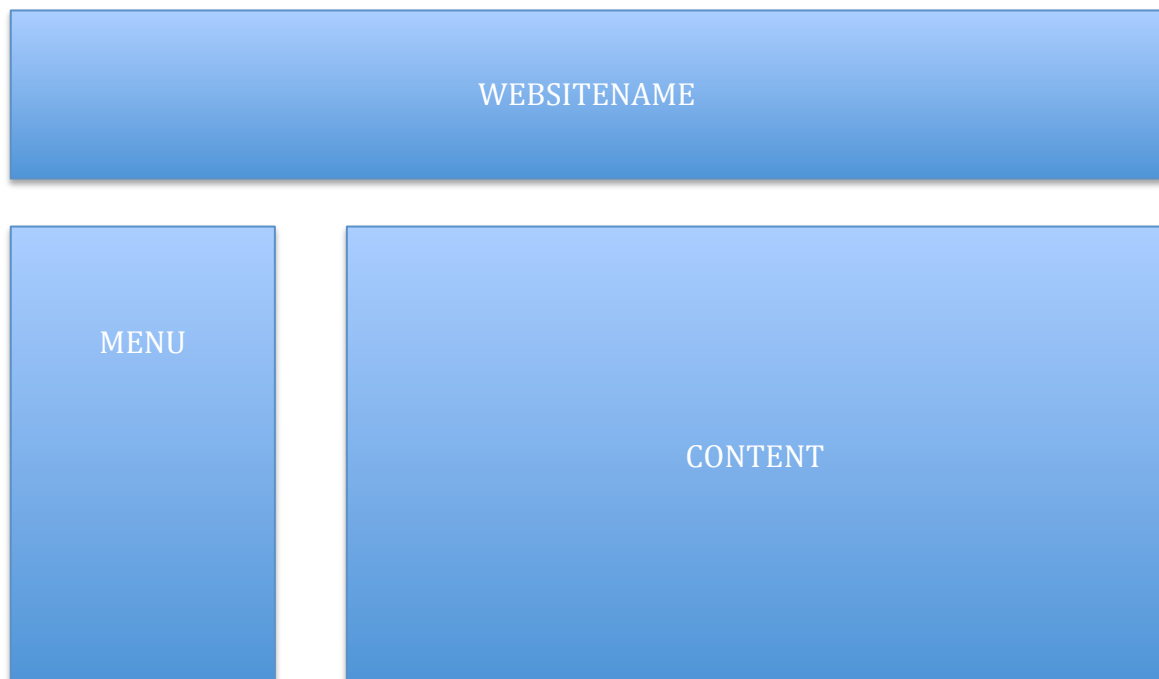

XML

The airline wants an overview of their employees and has therefore asked you to structure an XML document that can handle the current information they want saved per employee.

The document must therefore accommodate the employee: name, surname, age, occupation, number of employment years and other items you may find relevant. There are three types of employees: Pilots, flight attendants and mechanics. During each pilot and mechanic must be apparent which aircraft employee can fly / repair, the list must be able to accommodate an unlimited number of aircraft.